THE REPUBLICAN PROGRAM

HOW THE TARIFF BILL IS TO BE PUT THROUGH.

Majority of Republican Senators Favor an Amendment Continuing the Hawaiian Treaty in Force.

A careful reading of the exchanges received by the last two mails from the Coast does not show any valid reasons for the present alarm over the probable fate of the Hawaiian reciprocity treaty. If there was any certainty that it would be thrown out, the papers would have something to say about it, especially those who are opposed to the treaty and annexation and who are in the pay of the sugar men.

If there is any one paper more than another devoted to the sugar interests and the personal welfare of the Spreckels family it is the San Francisco Call, nominally owned by Charles M. Shortridge but really by John D. Spreckels, and yet a careful perusal of its columns shows nothing for the people of Hawaii to worry about but rather the opposite. Here is an extract from a double column leader on "The Tariff":

Reports from Washington concerning the outlook for a speedy adoption of a tariff bill are so conflicting it is difficult to arrive at any conclusion concerning them. We are assured by some correspondents that a poll of the Senate shows that a majority is in favor of adopting the bill as reported to that body, but others, who are equally well informed, state that strong opposition will be made to it; that it will have to be materially amended before it can pass even the Senate; and that after leaving that body it will meet with strong opposition in the House.

"The changes in the bill which have attracted most attention are those omitting from the revised report the clause referring to Hawaii and that dealing with the subject of reciprocity generally. It is understood that the Republican members of the Finance Committee who revised the bill are not opposed to the Hawaiian treaty nor to the principle of reciprocity, but have deemed it best to report the bill without them in order that they may be taken up separately and dealt with on their merits."

In a short editorial note, the same paper says:
"The vote in the Senate in favor of an appropriation for Pearl harbor doesn't look as though our interests in Hawaii were to be allowed to go by default."

In the Washington dispatches to the same paper, under date of May 5, is found the following plan of the campaign to be adopted by the Republican Senators in the management of the bill:

"Some of the Republican members of the House are very sarcastic in reference to the tariff bill to be reported to the Senate. Grosvenor of Ohio, a member of the Ways and Means Committee, and quite generally regarded as a spokesman of the administration, says the bill as at present framed can never pass the House. But Grosvenor may be mistaken. "It was learned today that the Republican Senators have already outlined the plan they will follow in passing the bill. Their plan is to keep the bill before the Senate constantly after it is called up for consideration on the 18th, and by beginning daily sessions at an early hour and continuing them at night to complete the consideration of the bill if possible before the end of the fiscal year.

"The bill will then be sent to the House, and if a conference committee is asked the Senate will decline to appoint and the House will thus be forced to the necessity of accepting the Senate bill or prolonging the contest indefinitely, with a prospect of having no bill at all.

"This is not intended to antagonize the House, but simply to adopt a plan of passing the bill without reference to a conference committee as the only practical method of disposing of it and avoiding the interminable discussion which would result if any other course were followed.

"In explanation of their action in striking out the entire reciprocity clause the Republicans claim that this clause will be brought up in the Senate in the shape of a general amendment covering the general question of reciprocity, and that undoubtedly some reciprocity provision will be adopted.

"Aldrich, author of the reciprocity clause in the McKinley tariff bill in 1890, will undoubtedly bring forward provisions based on the lines of that law, but probably more general in their application.

"It is apparently the opinion of the majority of the Republican Senators that an amendment will be adopted continuing the Hawaiian treaty. It is explained further that in striking out of the bill the clause declaring that the treaty shall not be abrogated, the Republican Senators are actuated only by a desire that the question shall come up on its merits instead of a somewhat appropriate amendment to the sugar schedule.

"The Democrats are still sweeping in their denunciation of the bill, but are not yet prepared to oppose it in all particulars."

NAVAL STATIONS.

Leslie's Weekly Makes a Plan for Reciprocity on Their Account.

Leslie's Weekly, in a late issue, argues for the revival of the late Secretary Blaine's policy of reciprocity, saying in that connection:

"The opportunity consists in the incorporation in the legislation relating to reciprocity treaties that nations on this hemisphere, favored especially by us in trade agreements, shall grant us in return the right to establish coaling stations for our navy, such stations to exist so long as the treaties shall remain in force. For thirty years we have been trying to secure these coaling stations by the round about methods of diplomacy, and we have failed. The one coaling station of importance that we have, that, at Pearl Harbor in the Hawaiian Islands, we secured through reciprocity legislation. Our navy is helpless, except for purely defensive purposes, without these stations. The value of a man-of-war in these days depends entirely upon its distance from a coal supply. No ship can carry more than a week's supply when steaming at full speed. On paper the United States is the fourth or fifth naval Power. This is simply from a defensive standpoint. From an aggressive standpoint this nation has not yet become a naval Power of any consequence, and will not become one until it shall have coaling stations in the zone where it must do its effective work."

Camarinos Taken to Agnew.

P. G. Camarinos, the wellknown planter of Honolulu and brother of D. G. Camarinos, the ex-Greek Consul, had to be sent to Agnew yesterday, says a late Call. He arrived from Honolulu on the steamer Alameda and his brother took him to Saualito. Returning to this city on the Rafael yesterday morning he went violently insane and had to be strapped down. As he got no better he was taken in a hack to the new City Hall and there Judge Belcher consigned him to the insane asylum. The general opinion seems to be that Mr. Camarinos' malady is only temporary and that in a few weeks or a month at the outside he will be out and attending to business again.

EDMUND P. DOLE'S STORY

GOOD LITERARY WORK BY OUR DEPUTY ATTORNEY GENERAL.

Tells of Two Stalwart Men on Two Sides of a Prohibition War in Maine.

"Mr. Dole is Assistant Attorney-General of Hawaii, and a cousin of President Dole. He is the author of a book entitled 'Talks About Law,' but in the present volume he has ventured into an entirely different field. 'The Stand-by' is a story of life in a New England village, and the action centers about a vigorous fight on the prohibition question. The hero wins the name that is taken for the title of the story during his college days, when he leads his crew to victory in an exciting boat-race. He becomes editor of a reform newspaper in a Maine town, and soon finds himself at the head of the prohibition forces. The battle is desperate, for the town is despotically ruled by a rich brewer, who is a man of indomitable character and fertile in resource. The temperance question is fairly treated, for the autocrat has himself put down all of the worst abuses, and the struggle merely revolves about the matter of principle and the enforcement of existing laws. The romantic element enters into the story in an attachment that grows up between the hero and a daughter of the brewer. The announcement is made that the story is founded upon fact."

The foregoing is a memorandum to editors supplied by the Century Co., publishers, in presenting the volume, "The Stand-by," for review. It is 12 mo., 230 pages, price $1.25. Mr. Dole has a clear, strong and dramatic style as an author, and this story will hold its own as literature apart from its instructive quality. There is a passing across the stage through a period of years of two unusually strong characters in antagonism—all the more fierce on account of mutual appreciation of each other's noble qualities—with the support of at least two others whose devotion to duty is no weaker than that of the ones first in account to their views of principle. The book is of evenly sustained but never slight interest to the very end. Its woof of romance richly colored with incident and episode is struck into a warp of informing fact relative to one of the leading questions of the age. No theory seems endeavored to be promulgated, yet the story will strengthen varying preconceived opinions. An appendix is printed in the volume, made up of sentiments gathered from the sayings of great authorities, sacred and secular, bearing upon the liquor question. This seems liable to be even more baffling than the story to anyone who is undecided as to how far legal intervention for the welfare of society may encroach upon the boundaries of individual liberty.

Co. B.

Six new members were taken into Co. B last night, and several men have re-enlisted. A good turnout was made last night, and a first class showing is promised for Memorial Day. The committee which managed the recent banquet in honor of Capt. White reported all expenses paid, and a balance of 5c. (five cents) left in the treasury. Various suggestions were made as to the disposal of the nickel, but it was finally handed over to the treasurer of the company, for safe keeping. A permanent entertainment committee was appointed last night. The duty of the committee will be to arrange some amusement one night in each month. A euchre party is generally approved of as a starter.

NO CAUSE FOR ALARM.

Japan Does Not Wish to Make Trouble Over Hawaiian Grievances.

Washington, D. C., May 5.—Mail from Consul-General Mills at Honolulu received at the State Department today contains no reference to the reported excitement about the attitude of Japan. From this Secretary Sherman believes that the alarm of the Hawaiian Government has abated. According to the statement given out by the Japanese Minister here, his Government is disposed to settle the controversy over the refusal to allow Japanese immigrants to land without recourse to a threatening naval demonstration. The State Department is hopeful that no trouble calling for intervention by the United States will result. The present intention, however, of the administration is to have at least two warships there until all danger of Japanese interference has passed.

POLICE COURT MATTERS.

On Trial for Conspiracy in the Third Degree.

In the police court this morning Judge de la Vergne's time was largely taken up with the trial of three Chinese, charged with conspiracy in the third degree by maliciously combining and concerting together to accuse one Ah Hock of the offense of having opium in possession and causing him to be arrested and prosecuted therefor. The defendant pleaded not guilty. Detective Kaapa, Officer Chun Poon and the complaining witness had been examined previously to the noon recess. The case is being continued this afternoon.

The charge of assault and battery against officer Toma Abe was nolle pro'd.

Four drafts paid the usual fine and all the other cases went over to future dates.

Yes, It Will Be Tens.

A recent hurried trip through Olan by the writer made evident one of the jolliest, most contented lot of planters to be found anywhere. There is a different atmosphere in Olan than that noted a year ago. Then there was hope borne up by the wish that coffee was all right. Now the Olan coffee man talks coffee, berries, sacks, pulper, polishing, etc. He has trees. There is no mistake about it. They are spending their evenings wondering how they will invest the profits.—Hilo Tribune.

FRANK MCINTYRE FINDS.

Mrs. P. C. Jones Wants an Owner for a Little War.

When Frank McIntyre went home to lunch he found a little child about two years old lying fast asleep under a big mango tree in his premises on Nuanu street. The child was covered from head to foot with mango juice and had evidently had a good time.

Mr. McIntyre tried to find out from the child where it lived and questioned it in English and native but met with no response. His Portuguese boy then tried the Portuguese language but with no effect. Frank then brought his knowledge of German to the front and asked:

"Sprechen sie Deutsch?"
"Yah, yah," replied the child, but as this was as far as Frank's knowledge of German extended the conversation came to a sudden stop.

Mrs. P. C. Jones kindly volunteered to take charge of the waif until it is claimed, and Mr. McIntyre reported its finding at the police station. The child has fair hair and blue eyes, is not over two years old, and is evidently of German or Norwegian parentage.

Masonic Hall at Hilo.

The contract has been let for a fine two story business building on the northwest corner of Bridge and Waianuenu streets, the site made vacant by the removal of the Japanese church. It will cost $3000, and Mr. Pratt has the contract; operations will be started immediately. Two stores facing on Waianuenu street will occupy the ground floor, and a staircase will lead up stairs to handsomely furnished quarters for our Masonic Lodge. This is one of the finest corners in Hilo, and will make good business locations.—Hilo Tribune.

AMUSEMENTS.

The Goddard Lectures.—The second of the Goddard lectures was given last night before an audience which was thoroughly in accord with the lecturer and listened to his splendid descriptions of the art of brewing "Rainier" beer. He remarked that only the best of hops and malt were used thus insuring a healthful beverage. On tap or in bottles at the Critchfield saloon.

The finest of breakfast sausages are to be had at the Central Meat Market on Nuanu avenue. Telephone 104.
